

JAPS BOMB MANILA, KILL MANY PERSONS AND START GREAT FIRES

Tire Famine Affects Big Part of U. S.

O. P. A. Cracks Down Upon Taxis, Salesmen and Many Commercial Truck Concerns

Stocks Are Frozen

Persons Who Would Rush to Get New Stock Are Stalemated

Washington, Dec. 27 (AP)—The nation's 32,000,000-odd motor car owners today faced an almost complete tire famine.

The Office of Price Administration cracked down all the way in a new rationing program, denying the vitally needed rubber not only to the Sunday pleasure driver, but to taxicabs, travelling salesmen and many commercial truckers.

The cut-off of crude rubber from the Far Eastern plantations may easily take millions of automobiles—with worn tires—from city street and rural highway.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson—cognizant of the needs of the armed forces for a long war—yesterday issued regulations for local tire rationing boards which start operation January 5. These regulations ban the issuance of purchasing certificates for new tires or tubes except to those coming within seven district classifications.

And the motorist who is now riding on fabric can't speed to his nearest dealer to stock up, for all supplies of new shoes and inner tubes are frozen until the rationing date.

Exceptions Are Listed
The car owners who can get new tires are those whose vehicles are essential to services for health, safety and industrial and commercial operations of a limited nature.

These are: Physicians, surgeons, visiting nurses, veterinarians. Ambulances.

Fire fighting equipment, police vehicles, garbage removal trucks and mail delivery cars.

Public service vehicles with a capacity of 10 or more passengers on regular transportation routes, school busses or cars to carry workers to and from industrial plants.

Trucks for ice and fuel delivery, road maintenance, public utilities facilities, essential repair services, waste and scrap dealers, common carriers and transportation for raw materials, semi-finished or finished goods which are not moving directly to the household for ultimate consumers' use.

Farm tractors or other implements, except trucks or pleasure cars.

Industrial, mining and construction equipment, except trucks or other automobiles.

As to the prohibition against sale for use on cars delivering to consumers, it was explained that there were factors to relieve any situation involving delivery of milk, bakery products and department store goods.

The pooling of delivery facilities was one suggested solution, especially where there is duplication of routes such as in milk and laundry services. Some of the bigger firms were said to have large stocks of tires on hand to carry them along for some time.

Only retreaded, recapped or other used tires are excepted from the regulations at present.

Collects Bounties
Fred Smith of Lake Hill brought half a dozen fine pelts to the county treasurer's office this morning where he collected $13 in bounties. One of them was from a good sized bob cat, on which there is a bounty of $5. The remainder were red and gray fox skins, the former bringing $1 each in bounty payments, while the grays are good for $2 each.

Ford Gives $100,000
Detroit, Dec. 27 (AP)—The Red Cross announced today a gift of $100,000 from the Ford Motor Company and the Ford Foundation, exclusive of donations from Ford employees. The money is to be expended in the Detroit area. Branch plants in other cities, the announcement said, will contribute to their local Red Cross funds.

German Report Shows Reds Battle for Kerch

Many Buy Defense Bonds and Stamps

Postmaster William R. Kraft said today that since this nation had declared war against Japan and the Axis powers that the post office department here had sold 293 defense bonds. The majority of the bonds sold were the $25 bonds. Last year during the same period the post office here sold but 42 bonds.

The post office department has also sold more than 30,000 defense stamps since the outbreak of the war.

U. S. Tells Japan Prisoners to Get Good Treatment

Prisoners-of-War Articles Adopted at Geneva in 1929 Will Be Followed Out

Washington, Dec. 27 (AP)—The United States has informed the Japanese government that all Japanese prisoners captured by American armed forces will be treated in accordance with provisions of the prisoners-of-war convention adopted by 47 nations at Geneva in 1929.

While Japan signed but never formally ratified the pact, it was expected here that the Japanese government would grant all American prisoners of war reciprocal fair and humane treatment.

Germany and Italy, Japan's Axis partners, signed and ratified the pact, and, on the basis of reports from the International Red Cross, are observing its terms in the treatment of British, French and other European prisoners of war.

To carry out the convention's terms the United States government will set up an organization to handle war-prisoners questions in cooperation with Marc Peter, former Swiss Minister to Washington, who will represent the International Red Cross here.

Americans Are Held
The Japanese already hold a number of Americans as prisoners of war, including marines who were stationed at Peiping and Tientsin; the crew of an American gunboat captured at Shanghai; the small but valiant marine garrison on Wake Island; a small naval and marine force taken on Guam; the undisclosed number of contract workers employed on these two captured bases; and presumably some American and Filipino troops taken in the Philippines.

Only a few Japanese prisoners of war have been taken thus far by American forces. These include several airmen shot down in Hawaii, and the two-man crew of at least one Japanese pigmy submarine which attacked Pearl Harbor.

In expectation that large numbers of Japanese soldiers and sailors will ultimately be captured, however, the war department already is planning internment camps where Japanese prisoners of war—as distinct from interned Japanese nationals—will be held until exchanged or for the duration of the war.

The prisoners-of-war pact, sponsored by the International Red Cross, as adopted in a meeting at Geneva on July 27, 1929 it established.

Churchill's Advice to United States Comes From Allies' Own Experience

By FRED VANDERSCHMIDT (Wide World Analyst)

Nothing can be better for this nation in these hours than to digest the invaluable words of advice and caution of our allies; words which come from the depths of their own terrible experience.

Hence it is most heartening to some of us who watched the beginnings of armageddon in England and continental Europe to see now that Americans are listening intently and with every evidence of appreciation to Winston Churchill.

In a way it is both presumptuous and superfluous to try to

Nazis Say Bombers Sink 4 Soviet Transports, Damage 5 Others in Kerch Straits

(By The Associated Press)
An attempt by Russia's Red armies to storm back into the east Crimean city of Kerch and ultimately to lift the eight-weeks-old siege of Sevastopol was indicated by the German high command today in a bulletin reporting that Nazi bombers had sunk four Soviet troop transports and damaged five others in the narrow straits of Kerch.

The straits lie between the Caucasus mainland and Kerch on the German-occupied Crimean peninsula.

The Nazi high command said the Russians suffered "heavy losses in men and material," indicating it was a sizable Russian expeditionary force. The high command did not disclose whether other transports were involved or whether the whole contingent was wiped out.

Heavy fighting has been reported raging at the approaches to Sevastopol for the past week. Only yesterday, a Soviet communique reported that 20,000 German troops had been killed in a six-day battle on the outer defenses of the big Black Sea naval base.

Far to the north, Russian troops battling to end the five-months-old siege of Leningrad were reported to have killed more than 6,000 Germans and recaptured 32 additional villages.

Nazis Are Driven Out
A Red army bulletin said the invaders had been driven in headlong retreat from the Volkovo area, 80 miles southeast of Leningrad, and the Moscow radio subsequently reported that Russian troops had advanced more than 20 miles beyond Volkovo.

Soviet estimates of the German death toll within the Christmas week rose to more than 36,000.

After weeks of grim silence on the Russian campaign, Adolf Hitler's field headquarters asserted that the battered German armies were now counter-attacking, and it may be that the fuhrer, in personal command, has signalled that the "strategic withdrawal" has gone far enough.

On several sectors of the front, Soviet forces in prepared positions were smashed or destroyed in counter-attacks.

The reported gains in the north came with an announcement that the Germans' Oka river line south of Moscow had been cracked by the capture of a strongly fortified town which Adolf Hitler had ordered held and by the fall of Narofominsk, 35 miles southwest of Moscow.

The Oka river town was not identified, but the British radio said it was Kiasma—a point hindered the advance of British troops pursuing the broken German armies south of Bengasi, but a Cairo communique reported that "our forces now are harassing the enemy main forces in the Agedabia area."

Holds Invasion Probable
In working out the broad allied strategy, Prime Minister Churchill is understood to have proceeded on the probability that Germany would continue to threaten an invasion of Britain in order to keep the island from dispatching men or material to other theatres of operation.

Members of Congress who lunched with the British Prime Minister after his historic address on Capitol Hill yesterday reported how, that Churchill was confident (Continued on Page Seven)

U. S. and Britain Reach Agreement On War Strategy

Details and Responsibility for Execution Remain to Be Worked Out in Conference

Washington, Dec. 27 (AP)—The United States and Great Britain were believed today to have reached a preliminary agreement on the board of strategy for land, air and sea campaigns calculated to put the Allies on the high road to victory in 1943.

The next step is to work out the details and responsibility for the strategy's execution, and the expectation was that this would get under way almost immediately—perhaps even today—in a joint conference attended by the representatives of the major allied powers.

The nations participating will be the United States, Great Britain, Soviet Russia, China, the Netherlands, the Dominion of Canada, Australia and New Zealand. The latter six have been kept fully informed on the progress of the conversations between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill, and representatives of the Pan American nations were invited to the White House today for a similar review.

One indication that the joint conference was about to start was the arrival here yesterday of Canada's Prime Minister, W. L. Mackenzie King.

There was reason to believe that arrangements for close Anglo-American cooperation already have been worked out, and it was reported that General Sir John Dill, the retiring chief of staff of the British army, would remain in Washington indefinitely to help assist in coordinating the military efforts of the two nations. Sir John came here in Churchill's party.

'High Cost of Living' Bonuses, Increased City Wages Are Listed

Lehman Warns Of Phone Uses

Governor Tells Public Safety Is Threatened by Clogging iLnes

Governor Lehman has appealed to the public not to use the telephone when an air raid warning is sounded.

"Tuesday's air raid warning in New York metropolitan area resulted in so many people using the telephone the lines in some sections of New York city and suburban areas were choked," he said. "Civilian defense authorities often were unable to reach air raid wardens and the full functioning of the defense organization was retarded."

"I ask everyone when an air raid warning is sounded to remember telephone lines must be kept free for defense purposes," he added. Only the most serious personal emergency warrants use of the telephone when you hear an air raid warning."

Chief Phinney of the Kingston police department, and Chief Murphy, of the fire department, earnestly request the cooperation of all citizens not only during the blackouts and air raid warnings, but for a considerable period of time afterwards, in order that emergency, police and fire calls may go through.

Taxpayers to Vote
Electors of the town of Shandaken who are owners of real property assessed on the last assessment roll, are voting today, from 2 to 8 p. m., on two propositions for the erection of a town hall. The first proposition is to pay $4,000 for property of James Owen at Allaben, now leased by the town, and spend not more than $2,000 for alterations and repairs. Funds from fire insurance paid on the former town hall to be used. The second proposition would be to use property at Allaben now owned by the town, and erect a town hall, using proceeds from fire insurance, $2,000 from the general fund and not more than $13,000 to be secured from a bond issue.

Tentative 1942 Budget Is Discussed at Public Hearing; Taxpayers Ask Bonuses, Increases Be Denied; City Parks Are Criticized

A "high cost of living bonus of $100" to each of the members of the Kingston police and fire departments, and increased pay to many city employees are included in the tentative budget which was submitted by Mayor C. J. Heiselman at the public hearing he held in the council chamber in the city hall on Friday evening.

The budget, if adopted, fixes the tax rate at $45.49, an increase of $4.81 over the 1941 rate.

The largest increase in appropriations are fire and police departments, which the mayor explained were due to the granting of the bonus, the additional appointments that had, or were to be made in the departments, and also for the purchase of four new radio cars and two motorcycles.

The police department budget calls for $13,443.19 more than 1941, while the fire department's increase is $19,860.61.

Mayor-elect William F. Edel-muth and members of his cabinet were present at the hearing, but none of them spoke for or against the proposed budget. The Kingston Taxpayers' Association was also represented, and Wilson Boyce, president of the association filed with Mayor Heiselman seven requests.

One of the requests was to "deny any bonus or increase in salaries to the city employees."

The budget submitted by Mayor Heiselman calls for the highest tax rate since he assumed office.

In opening the hearing Mayor Heiselman called attention to the fact that he was submitting the estimates filed with him by the various city departments without changing the amounts asked for by the various boards and departments. He read the statement that appeared in The Freeman last night.

Why the Increases
The principal increases and decreases in the various departmental estimates were listed by Mayor C. J. Heiselman in the following statement, which the mayor read at the hearing:

Personal services: Wage increases for city employees, after crediting state reimbursements, and not including Public Works Department, amount to a net of about $3,250.

Hull Says Japs Act Like Nazis

Tokyo Pours Hordes of Reinforcements Into Luzon, North and South of Manila

No Defense Made

Raiders Find Manila Wide Open to Assault by Planes

(By The Associated Press)
Japanese bombers heavily attacked Manila today, leaving untold numbers dead and great fires raging, 24 hours after the Philippine capital had been officially declared an open, undefended city. Not a shot was fired in return. Secretary of State Hull declared today that Japan, in bombing the "open city" of Manila, was practicing the same barbaric methods of cruelty and inhumanity that Hitler has been using in Europe.

The secretary's statement came in reply to a request for comment on Japan's apparent lack of respect for international law in bombing Manila which has been declared an open city, undefended, to spare civilian suffering.

Hull said Japan had an entirely consistent record in recent years especially since the invasion of China in 1937, in practicing the same barbaric methods, the same methods of cruelty and inhumanity as Hitler practices and has been practicing in Europe.

Pouring Reinforcements
As first dispatches trickling out of the bomb-torn capital pictured the city in flames, the War Department reported that Japan's sea-borne invasion hordes were pouring reinforcements north and south of Manila.

The communique said fleets of enemy troops were landing fresh troops in the Lingayen Gulf area, 110 miles north of the capital, and at Atimonan, 75 miles south of Manila.

"Very heavy fighting" is in progress on the Atimonan front. On the southeast shore of Lamon Bay, the War Department said, heavy aerial attacks were reported all over the islands, and from Manila, Bert Silen, N. B. C. broadcaster declared:

"The cry is for help—help from America. And if this does not come soon, all of us have resigned ourselves to the inevitable . . ."

Rivalling if not surpassing the stab-in-the-back assault on Pearl Harbor, the raiders visited terror on the helpless metropolis and its 625,000 population for two and one-half hours.

Dispatches from Manila said the raiders attacked in such great numbers that they could not be counted, striking first at ships in the harbor and then turning on the defenseless city itself.

As night fell over the bomb-ravaged capital, an N.B.C. broadcast reported that casualties were high and still uncounted.

"There is little need for a black-out here tonight. A bright moon is shining—and its color is tinged with red. All around us, great fires are burning," the broadcaster said.

N. B. C. said the 350-year-old Santo Domingo Church was set afire and that bomb-started flames were threatening the entire old walled city area, close to ancient Fort Santiago, which had not been used for military purposes in years.

Direct hits were scored on the Philippine treasury building, a fire station and a college.

NBC said the rain of bombs started at 11:45 a. m. and fell without pause until 3:15 p. m. Other reports said the raid lasted an hour less.

While Tokyo remained silent on the assault, the German radio asserted that "the Japanese military does not recognize that Manila is to be treated as an open city."

The broadcast gave the flimsy explanation that "because the decision was taken by General MacArthur without consultation with the Philippine population," the Japanese could not agree to an open-city designation.

There appeared to be no legitimate excuse. The city had been stripped of its anti-aircraft defenses. All American troops and marines had long since withdrawn, in accordance with Gen. Douglas (Continued on Page Three)

County Home Bureau Agent Gives Report of Activities Carried Out During Year

The following summary of work done by the Ulster County Home Bureau, as shown in the annual report, gives a general idea of the activities carried on by the organization during the past year. Miss Everice Parsons is county agent in charge of this work.

The chief interest of the modern homemaker, like that of her older sister, is her home and her family. It is no idle comment that woman is "the heart of the home." She is, what she wants to do is make of home a place where her husband finds rest and relaxation with her as an understanding and stimulating companion, where the children can learn what it means to be upright, honorable, loving and happy and where all work for one another and the common good.

Washing, cleaning, meal planning and preparation, house beautification, clothing selection and repair, purchasing of goods make up the action side of her homemaking but the thought side requires patience, understanding, study.

Ulster county homemakers have tackled both of these phases of homemaking during the past year. Four hundred and forty-three women were enrolled in 1941 in the following units: Accord, Flatbush, Forest Glenn, High Falls, Kingston, Lake Katrine, Lomontville, Milton, Modena, Napanoch, Shokan, Wallkill and Woodstock.

In addition 300 cooperated in the study clubs of which the E. K. A., Kingston I, Kingston II, Mawak, Rondout Valley and Warchester are the child study clubs and Accord, Forest Glenn, Kingston Lake Katrine, Milton, Modena and Wallkill are family life groups. There is one leadership study club.

All together 682 meetings with an attendance of 9,279 have been held.

The work in family life is basic to the entire program. Only by development can women work toward that end, make the changes of attitude necessary in themselves and get the right perspective on their housekeeping duties. The attendance at study club meetings was 1908 during the year. Each club chose the course of study best suited to its membership.

The American Family in a Changing Society, Children in a Democracy and Religious Education, Child Guidance, the Young Child's Learning and His Relationships with Adults in Routine Situations, A Study of Personality, Guidance of the School Age Child, Understanding Ourselves and the problems of leadership.

Three new study clubs have been organized this year. Specialist and agent have made 33 visits to help with program and organization and take part in discussions.

At the second Family Life Institute held in April the specialist gave a talk on "What Are the Characteristics of a Mature Parent?" to the 125 who attended. Several local business and professional men took part in a panel discussion of the question "What Security Is There for Families in the Modern World?"

Members say they are cooking vegetables a shorter period of time to retain their color and nutritive value and to save fuel as the result of the lessons on vegetable cooking, taught at unit meetings. By using new recipes they have overcome family dislikes of certain vegetables.

People continued to make Christmas cards during December 1940; 1171 are reported to have been made with a saving of $24.53. The study clothing leaders made of needs in their field resulted in attention to the care of clothes and 134 members have been taught how to pack clothing compactly without wrinkling.

The mending and dry cleaning lessons taught last year are being put to good use; 1,637 garments have been given attention.

The clothing department of the College of Home Economics loaned an exhibit of summer dresses that could be made by any energetic homemaker at low cost. Leaders modeled the garments at a county-wide meeting. This afforded an occasion to show the 105 present the braided rugs made up to that time; 67 were exhibited of various sizes. Many of these rugs were made of home-dyed materials. Each was planned for a particular spot in the home to harmonize with the other furnishings.

One unit made slip covers for chairs. One hundred and ten turned out for the long sought lecture-demonstration on curtains and draperies. Interest in learning how to make these influenced the executive committee to send a county leader to Ithaca this summer to learn the techniques and repeat it to local leaders. A county weaving leader and a refinishing leader received training there also.

A collection of table mats, purses, knitting bags and samples made on simple looms by weaving leaders at five training schools have been exhibited at the office and at the Ulster county arts and crafts exhibit held recently in Kingston.

Each year a few more women see that by improving their kitchens they are making possible a better organization of their work, which affects the welfare of the whole family. The county leader, agent and specialist have held 15 such conferences in nine units. Attention to the field of physical health has been directed by four units to a study of community health conditions and common diseases.

The Flatbush unit has been given a convalescent chair, hospital gowns, six cushions and pillows to add to its community loan closet. County and local leaders have held 31 conferences giving help on the improvement of home grounds.

Eighty-nine Christmas greens in four units valued at $38.50. Fifty-one women attended the Women's Joint Legislative Forum at Albany, gaining an appreciation of the pros and cons of current legislation.

Information received on all projects has been passed on to 658 others needing or wanting it.

Members have supported well-baby clinics, milk funds for school children, made or provided toys, and scrap-books and dressed dolls for children's wards, hospitals, worked with other organizations to improve the movies in their localities, and assisted in religious education programs.

The 171 leaders who have extended the teachings by attending training schools and repeating the lessons in their own units. The attendance of 7,167 at the 487 lessons they have conducted is only a part of the service they render others.

The two "Homemaker and Her Markets" meetings held in February and March were planned and carried out co-operatively by representatives of women's educational organizations, the Ulster County Farm Bureau and 4-H Clubs and a group from the Merchants Association.

Some of the subjects discussed this year were the cost of home production, service trades, cost of producing and distributing milk, the cost of living and how war and defense affect prices.

Home Bureau members have taken an active part in forwarding the work of the Ulster County Nutrition Committee by holding two training schools for interested women, giving talks at four P. T. A.'s, assisting with the county-wide low cost nutrition dinner and with radio talks. This year foods and nutrition leaders have been appointed members of the town Nutrition Committees and as such are responsible for repeating all lessons received in this field in their own towns upon request.

Members contributed $25.55 to the Scholarship fund of the New York State Federation of Home Bureaus and $18.75 was sent for seeds for Britain.

Home Bureau members have been serving on health, legislative, nutrition and library committees of the New York State Federation of Home Bureaus.

The chairman of the Eastern District Federation of Home Bureaus is a county member. Giving her support, 35 attended the annual meeting at Mineola at which Ulster's exhibit was 30 of the braided rugs, already mentioned.

Delegates were sent to the New York State Federation of Home Bureaus meeting in Syracuse and to Farm and Home Week, Study clubs sent 14 representatives to the May Family Life Conference in Ithaca.

The executive committee has continued its study of social, health, and economic facts about the county with the assistance of Professor Robert A. Polson, rural social organization specialist from the College of Agriculture. Facts of pertinence were population trends, standards of living data, information on participation and leadership in rural groups.

County and city newspapers have publicized Home Bureau happenings with 210 articles. Their cooperation is greatly appreciated as is that of the local radio station for giving time for the Ulster County Home Hour.

The executive committee held 12 meetings administering the program. The agent spent 116 days in the office and 145 in the field; 1,457 individual letters were written.

High Living Cost Bonus Is Cited

In some cases been granted. Several wage increases were mandatory because the salaries paid have been under the minimum class rates established by the civil service law and had to be brought up to the required minimums.

These wage increases were made by the various city boards after employees, in most cases, have called the attention of the boards to the increase in the cost of living caused by the national emergency. A recent government report indicated that from February, 1941, to October 15, 1941, food costs have risen 14 per cent; clothing prices 12.9 per cent; rent 2.3 per cent and house furnishings 14.8 per cent. Since October 15, these living costs have further increased.

In the December issue of the magazine "Public Management," published by the International City Managers' Association, appears an article headed, "Two-thirds of cities increase pay of city employees," which states that the Municipal Finance Officers' Association made a survey in November which showed that 384 cities of different population groups had already granted wage increases to their employees because of the rising cost of living. No doubt, since then, other cities, like Kingston, have taken similar action, which will greatly increase the number of cities recognizing that the wages of municipal employees must be adjusted to rising living costs.

Police department: $6,000 of the increase is due to filling the three vacancies which have existed in the department and which must now be filled in the interest of national defense and because of mandatory increments for policemen who had not yet reached the maximum of their class.

$2,684 represents the cost of four new police radio cars to replace the badly worn cars which are now in service.

$600 represents the cost of two new motorcycles which replace those now in need of replacement. $3,700 represents a high cost of living bonus of $100 payable to 37 members of the department.

Fire Department: $13,000 of the increase is due to the appointment of an additional deputy fire chief and several additional firemen during 1941, which were required to save the citizens of the city $11,000 a year in fire insurance premiums; for mandatory increments for firemen who had not yet reached the maximum for their class; and for the proposed appointment of six additional firemen to comply with the provisions of the new state 72-hour law for paid firemen.

$3,900 represents the high cost of living bonus of $100 per annum payable to 39 members of the department.

Laboratory: This shows an increase of $3,500 to the local taxpayer.

This is made up of annual increments, and an increase in payroll of $3,000 over last year to provide an association director and pathologist.

The cost of the blood bank equipment amounts to $3,888.75, which represents a capital investment which will not have to be repaid.

It should be remembered that the state reimburses half of the net cost of operating the laboratory system up to $7,500 per annum.

Board of Health: Shows an increase of $3,490 for two public health nurses and their transportation.

The State Department of Health has indicated to the city that five additional public health nurses should be employed by the local board of health to do the same sort of a public health job that is now being done in Ulster county, outside of the city.

The local board of health did not feel that five additional nurses could be provided at this time. However, the state offered to provide one nurse for the city at the state's expense if the city would provide for two nurses, making a total of three. The local board of health accepted this proposition. Three additional public health nurses should materially improve public health conditions in the city, especially among the lower income groups.

Welfare Department: The appropriation for home relief in the estimate has been increased because the state welfare law requires that 60 per cent of the cost of home relief must be included in the 1942 budget. The law required only 40 per cent of the cost of home relief to be included in the 1941 budget.

Kingston Library: Shows an increase of $1,500 to meet operating costs and some necessary repairs.

Civilian Defense: Nothing was appropriated in the 1941 budget. $5,500 has been asked by the local defense council in the 1942 budget and other appropriations will be necessary later in the year, depending on developments.

Cancellation of taxes: This item increased $4,000 because the acquisition by the city, because of delinquent taxes, of Hauck's brewery.

Post service: Most of this increase is due to the cost of home and work relief and W. P. A., and because the state legislature several years ago, overrode its mandatory for cities to pay most of their W. P. A. bonds within five years, instead of spreading the cost of W. P. A. public improvements over a 10-year period, as was formerly permitted.

$4,600 of the increase is due to appropriating $4,600 last month for an emergency hospital for civilian defense.

State retirement system: Nothing had to be included in last year's budget for the general city employees.

This year $7,500 had to be included because the city joined the New York State Retirement System.

Playgrounds and recreation:

The principle increases are due to the fact that we must now pay the entire cost of operating the downtown community youth center, whereas last year the N. Y. A. paid for certain costs; because most park attendants will be necessary in 1942 because the W. P. A. will have completed all park improvements and regular attendants will then be necessary.

Principal decreases: First, the sum of $16,323.15 in surpluses from 1941 are on hand and will be carried forward to reduce the 1942 budget and will be used next year.

The appropriation for highway maintenance has been decreased $7,000 on the assumption that most streets are now in good condition and because the Board of Public Works finished the year 1941 with a large unexpended balance in that appropriation.

Assessments: Decreased $92,814 during 1941.

Of that sum, $35,000 represents the loss of assessment on the Hauck brewery and $78,470 the loss of public franchise assessments on railroad and public utility franchises ordered by the New York State Tax Commission.

Various other increases and decreases were made in assessments and the net decrease is $92,814.

This decrease in assessments contributes its share to the increase in tax rate.

Taxpayers Object

The mayor then threw the meeting open for public discussion and the first to speak was Wilson Boyce, president of the Kingston Taxpayers Association, who read the following prepared statement, which he filed with the mayor:

To whom it may concern: The Kingston Taxpayers Association request the following resolutions be put into effect as soon as possible:

That the tentative budget be carefully perused for the elimination of unnecessary and non-defense items.

Deny any bonus or increase in salaries to the city employees.

Postpone appointments to the fire department until after January 1, 1942.

That a regulation of fees be adopted by the City of Kingston relating to both the Kingston Hospital and the Benedictine Hospital as follows: Minimum case rates applicable to both hospitals and abolish the yearly rate method.

That all city board meetings be made public to the general public by public advertisement.

That the city charter be revised.

That the salary which the city clerk receives should suffice all the work he does, e. g., the itemizing the tax list.

KINGSTON TAXPAYERS ASSOCIATION

Wilson Boyce, president, Louis Dutton, vice president, Bessie Bregman, secretary, Fred Richter, treasurer.

Mayor Heiselman in reply to Mr. Boyce said that in regard to the proposed hospital fee system that that custom had been in use in Kingston for several years and that it cost the city approximately $4 a day for a patient in the local hospitals.

Mr. Boyce said that he understood that in Poughkeepsie the welfare department paid only $1.50 or $2 a day per person.

The mayor replied that the rates in Kingston were cheaper than in any other city in the state that he knew of.

As to the last point in regard to the city clerk fees the mayor said that any fees the city clerk received were either turned over to the state, if the state law so required, or else to the general fund of the city.

The only pay the city clerk received was his salary of $2,500 a year.

As to the request that the city charter be revised, the mayor said he was heartily in favor of it. He said that in 1936 he had attempted to have a new charter adopted without success. He said that if the incoming administration decided to make an attempt to have the charter revised, that he, for one, would support the project and work for its success.

Mrs. Bregman Objects

Mrs. Adele Bregman, who owns considerable property in the city, said that if the proposed budget was adopted with its tax of $45 it would mean with the additional $10 school tax that the property owners would have to pay a city tax of $55 per thousand valuation.

She said that as far as increase in rents in the city as the mayor had read she did not see how the property owners with the low rents they were getting could pay the taxes.

"Now is the time to pity the poor taxpayer and leave him alone," she said.

Speaking on the appropriation made for the recreational facilities in Kingston, Mrs. Bregman contended that too much money "was wasted." That there was plenty of recreation as it was.

She also attacked the proposed bonuses to city employees that were provided for in the budget. She said that those holding jobs with the city were getting well paid, and had no investments to protect.

"There is no occasion for all these luxuries," said Mrs. Bregman, and added that she had all her money tied up in real estate. This budget, she said, would not hurt the incoming mayor but it would hurt the outgoing one.

"Are you in favor of closing the parks?" asked the mayor.

"Yes, if we can save money now, when it is most needed," replied Mrs. Bregman.

She said that many of the taxpayers were finding it difficult now to pay their taxes, and for that reason every effort should be made to cut down expenses.

"Too Many Parks"

Fred Richter also spoke in favor of revising the city charter, and said, "we have too many parks and playgrounds; it is being overdone. This city is not like New York City."

Several others in the audience arose in their seats and said that they desired to register protests against the proposed budget.

Stanley Narewse of West Chestnut street, who said he expected to be called for service in the armed forces of the nation,

Dixie Nurseryman Breeds New Plants

Develops Odd Crosses of Apples, Peaches, Plums.

NEW ORLEANS.—If it's an edible plant, Sigmund Tarnok probably grows a variation of it you've never heard about. If it's a lily, you can omit the "probably."

On a side road out of New Orleans is the Tarnok nursery, where he has developed a grapefruit-sized orange (juicy, seedless, capable of surviving two degrees below zero), where he's working to add a new vitamin to the tomato and where thrives the Pymy lily which he created for tiny ponds.

Born in Hungary of nurserymen ancestors for five generations before him, he came to the United States with $25 and got a job in a Baltimore florist shop.

He has since been superintendent of parks at Macon, Ga., and has owned successively three nurseries. The road to his present place is bumpy—purposely left so because Tarnok hasn't time to show visitors around his plant-crammed acres.

It takes about three hours to walk around the nursery and inspect the Tarnok projects—like the new plant with an edible root that tastes like a peanut and looks like a shrimp.

And then there are strange crosses of apples, peaches and plums. But his specialty is lilies, because he bought his present land without looking too closely and later found it an area of ponds full of alligators and water moccasins.

Of the astonishing diversity of lilies he has produced he is especially proud of one that turned out deep red, "the darkest red ever."

He creates a new plant, patents it and turns it over to large-scale nursery operators. They market it and he gets royalties.

KINGSTON, N. Y.—Howard E. Van Winkle, 52, lives in Stone Ridge in the heart of the legendary Catskills.

(Sure, they call him Rip.)

Van Winkle's ancestors lived for many generations in that area fictionalized by Washington Irving.

(Yes, the old settlers say his great-great-grandfather was the original Rip who took the 20-year nap.)

Last night Van Winkle an apple grower, attended a meeting of the Hudson Valley Apple Harvesting committee. Price stabilization was discussed; then Theodore Oxholm, chairman, called for Rip's opinion.

But there was no answer. (You guessed it—Rip was sound asleep.)

Street Car Is Chartered To Celebrate Birthday

ST. PAUL.—To celebrate their birthdays, Jean Miller and John Hastings hired a street car.

Miss Miller, 18, and Hastings, 17, invited 22 young people to their party aboard the car, which traveled along downtown streets for three hours.

Several amateur musicians and a phonograph supplied music for dancing. Refreshments were served on card tables. Everybody had a good time, including startled pedestrians who watched the car move slowly through the business district.

The rental fee for the street car was $10.

Fathers and Daughters Learn to Fly Together

RACINE, WIS.—Like father, like daughter, is the paraphrase at Horlick-Racine airport these days, with flying no longer a man's game.

Gordon Guilbert, Racine manufacturer, who was state golf champion in 1921, turned to flying as a sport after the airport opened, and his daughters, Patricia, 16, and Jeanne, 18, made it a family affair.

Feider Sommers, manufacturer, has been flying for years, is a licensed pilot, and owns his own plane. His daughter Monnie began her flying career about the same time as the Guilbert family.

Wish Prompts Removal Of Tree 50 Years Old

SACRAMENTO, CALIF.—Robert Allen planted a camellia tree in the yard of his home here 50 years ago, expressing the wish that the tree remain with the family wherever they lived.

When the property was sold recently, Mrs. M. L. Drennan, Allen's daughter, arranged for moving the tree to her new home at Stockton.

During the intervening half century the tree had grown so large it required a special derrick and a box 10 by 12 feet to move it.

Miss Bessie Bregman suggested that a count be made of those present who either favored or opposed the proposed budget, but the mayor said it was a public hearing that was being held and any one present had an opportunity to speak if they desired.

No one else being ready to talk, the mayor declared the hearing closed.

Copies of the proposed budget were distributed to those in the audience by the mayor before the hearing was opened.

The Proposed Budget

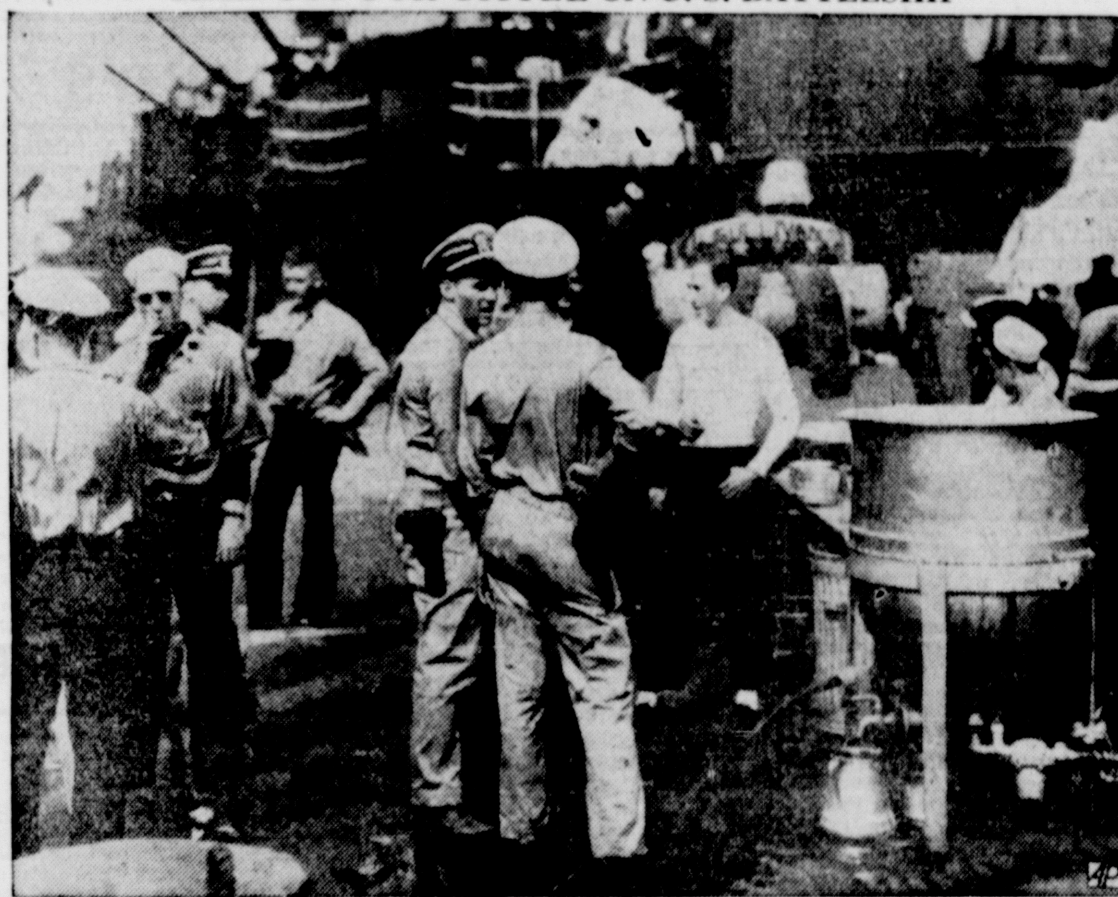

The proposed budget as submitted by the mayor follows:

Please help by taking the text books to the office at 247 Clinton avenue.

America Created the Japanese Silk Trade

The passing of the American woman's fancy for silks was not the blow to American weavers that it was for the Japanese raw-silk producer, for practically all American silk-weaving machines can be adapted to the weaving of synthetic fabrics. On the wharves of Nippon, raw silk jammed the storehouses.

For months, the emperor's government has been buying silk in the open market to keep the price from dropping precipitously. The government has ordered 36 per cent of the island's silk reeling basins shut down, to reduce Japan's annual production to about 550,000 pounds.

Thus, in a sense, America has taken away from Japan the great trade which, two generations ago, America originated. America created the demand for her silk.

Almost since the day Admiral Perry and Townsend Harris opened the ports of Japan to the commerce of the world, in the middle of the last century, raw silk has been that nation's chief export.

From 2640 B. C., when Siling, the emperor's wife, cared for silkworms herself in China's Imperial Garden, China had been the silk center of the world—until American machinery gave the Japanese a break.

Substitute Dope

Drug addicts, especially those devoted to opium and its derivatives, are finding their supply cut off by the war and the alertness of customs officials, but a substitute narcotic is finding its way, via bootlegging channels, from Mexico.

It is peyote, made from Mexican cactus. It is said to have been popular with the Indians there for generations. The Nevada legislature recently outlawed it in that state, but a Reno physician is quoted as saying that its use is becoming as prevalent as was marijuana several years ago.

It is a "little brown button" which the Indians describe as "the sacred mushroom of the Aztecs." Under its influence addicts are said to "have beautiful dreams and hear sweet music."

Device Prevents Snoring

A little mechanical device that the inventor guarantees will prevent snoring. This little gadget is made of a special plastic that becomes softer after being slipped inside the lips.

If the mouth falls open in sleep the breath escapes through 40 little holes in the thin sheet of plastic that is molded to fit between the teeth and lips. The inventor insists the new mouth muffler cannot be swallowed and may be worn with or without false teeth. To attract a throng the demonstrator imitated a variety of noises. Two doctors mistook the horrid sound for death rattles and came running. After that the demonstrator inserted the bit of plastic and huffed, puffed and snorted for minutes at a time to prove the device makes snoring impossible.

Library Sleuth

Almost everybody in the country knows that there are such things as public libraries and, of course, librarians. But they don't know that many of the big libraries of the country employ men who are never seen by the borrowers and readers of books. They are library sleuths, like Mr. Samuel Wardlaw, who puts in his days at the Los Angeles public library standing behind a grill peering through a powerful set of binoculars. Mr. Wardlaw has his peculiar job because there are a few people in every big city who don't appreciate the services of a public library and who have a habit of trying to steal books or of foolishly defacing them. In Mr. Wardlaw's balliwick these petty thieves seldom get away with it.

Injured in Skid

Arthur J. Keator of 16 Main street suffered severe injuries to his chest, leg and face Friday when his car skidded on icy pavements at West Camp and overturned. Driving north Keator's car suddenly came upon a stretch of icy pavement on a curve and fell causing him to lose control. The car turned over several times. Mr. Keator was taken to the Benedictine Hospital where X-rays were taken to determine the full extent of his injuries. Several cars were reported in trouble at the same spot Friday. At the hospital this morning his condition was reported as "fair."

Jap Planes Bomb Wide-Open Manila

MacArthur's designation of the city as "open" to save the populace from further suffering. Unmovable military stores in the city had been destroyed and U. S. army headquarters had been moved outside the city.

Tokyo Gives No Word

While Tokyo had given no word regarding Gen. MacArthur's proclamation, the Japanese-controlled Saigon radio said yesterday that as from December 25 Japan was "considering Manila as an open city."

Moreover, waves of Japanese planes had flown over Manila yesterday, apparently to test Gen. MacArthur's statement that the capital was no longer defended—and met no opposition.

Even the Germans refrained from attacking Paris after the French capital was "proclaimed open" shortly before the fall of France last year.

Significantly, Gen. MacArthur's proclamation contained this paragraph:

"In order that no excuse may be given for a possible mistake, the American high commissioner, the commonwealth government and all combatant military installations will be withdrawn from its (Manila's) environs as rapidly as possible."

Dispatches from Manila late yesterday said this pledge had been fulfilled.

Bombs blasted buildings in the walled city area near old Fort Santiago, which has not been manned for years, and another section nearby. Ships in the harbor also were targets of Emperor Hirohito's fliers.

There were reports of increased Japanese pressure on the Atimonan front and a total gain of 20 miles or more by invasion forces driving south from the Lingayen Gulf area toward Manila.

Conditions Unchanged

The U. S. Far Eastern command said, however, in a communique issued at 4 p. m. Manila time (2 a. m., E.S.T.) that "conditions remain unchanged on both fronts."

The United States and Filipino units making up General MacArthur's command had been reported facing persistent Japanese action both above and below Manila.

Baguio, the summer capital 20 miles inland from Lingayen Bay, already has been occupied by the Japanese, the Italian Stefani news agency declared in a dispatch from Tokyo.

The U. S. war department announced last night that Americans and Filipinos were defending a position along the Agno river, which at some points is about 90 miles from Manila, against Japanese forces who landed in the Lingayen Gulf area. Heavy artillery duelling was noted.

The Atimonan threat is in the Lamon Bay area 75 miles south-east of Manila.

Meanwhile Lieut. Gen. Sir Henry Pownall, 53-year-old artillery specialist who formerly was vice-chief of Britain's imperial general staff, took over command of British Far East headquarters at Singapore from Air Chief Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Popham, with checking of the Malayan invasion as his first major task.

Pownall, who had been boosted over the heads of 100 higher-ranking officers from a colonelcy since 1938, was made a full general.

Climax of Criticism

The shake-up climaxed sharp criticism in London newspapers and elsewhere over the conduct of the Malayan campaign. Pownall's appointment was disclosed only five days after Sir Charles Vyner Brooke, the white rajah of Sarawak, declared in Sydney that "brass hats . . . Lah-di-dah old school tie incompetents" were in charge at Singapore, 475 miles across the South China Sea from his now invaded capital of Kuching.

A German broadcast said Japanese troops driving down the Malayan peninsula toward Singapore had broken through British defense lines in an advance so deep that the tin-mining town of Ipoh, 300 miles northwest of Singapore, "now is within the territory of their military operations."

British dispatches, however, said there had been no change in the situation, with fighting continuing in the Perak river area on the west coast and in Trengganu province on the peninsula's east coast.

British-allied Dutch bombers were credited with two more successes in their ship-a-day toll of Japanese vessels—the sinking of the largest ship in an enemy concentration off Kuching and a lighter.

Aneta, the N.E.L. news agency, said the official tally listed Japan's losses at 16 ships sunk and five damaged by Dutch fighting forces in the 21-day-old battle of the Pacific.

The United States and Britain were believed in Washington to have reached a preliminary agreement on broad strategy for land, air and sea offensive campaigns in 1943, with details to be worked out in immediate conferences.

Soviet Russia, China, Canada, Australia, and New Zealand will participate with Britain and the United States in the joint conferences, which follow conversations between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill.

THE CHRISTMAS MAIL

The amount of mail to foreign lands has been reduced to a mere trickle by the war that engulfs the whole world. In spite of that fact, Christmas mail in this country was expected to be 10 per cent above last year's volume. When travel to Europe and Asia became impossible, Americans did not stop traveling. They simply switched to the endless variety of scenes and recreation available in this hemisphere. It seems to be the same story in the matter of holiday mail.

A goodly portion of the Christmas mail went to men in the nation's armed forces in all parts of the world. And Uncle Sam promised that packages and letters would follow those to whom they were addressed, if the men had been recently moved, whether merely to camps in this country or to distant outposts.

It was hardly necessary to urge the American people to go ahead with Christmas, not merely "as usual," but better than ever before. That was their determination from the start, and the ugly Japanese surprise, thrust into the holiday season, didn't alter it.

THESE SAVAGE WARS

Japan, using twentieth-century industrialism to fight a big war in the modern manner, is still a medieval nation. Her heroes, regardless of their modern garb, seem to belong with the armored knights in museums. If we could only stuff these flesh-and-blood marauders back into their ancient accoutrements and silken tapestries! Such people should be embalmed in history and art, not killers and despoilers and disturbers of the world's peace in so delicate a civilization as ours.

For our civilization is delicate. It is held together by a thousand fragile strings, by a thousand needs and arts and aspirations that the rough, tough people of the Middle Ages did not have and could not understand.

"They should take who have the power and they should keep who can" was the motto of those times. And though we of later centuries have thrown over them a glamor of romance and poetry, this comes largely out of our own imagination. They were mostly tough guys, even at their best. And they are just as tough, but vastly more dangerous, when they step out of history and appear in this fragile culture of ours, shooting and killing and burning and drowning and trying to drag us all back to their own crude level.

It is largely the same with Hitler's savage eruption in Europe. His wars, in spite of their modern weapons and ideological jargon, belong in the twelfth century with Genghis Khan, or maybe even as far back as Alaric the Hun.

ON THE FACTORY FRONT

Much will be expected of workmen in American factories from now on. They, like army men, must work under pressure and sometimes accomplish the seemingly impossible. Industrial production in this modern warfare becomes as important as military service, though less dangerous. Long hours and the use of factories 24 hours a day and seven days a week will soon be the rule. It will be hard on the men, but they will be well paid for it, and the strain will be made endurable by a sense of unity with the troops using the stuff they produce.

Fears of sabotage and deliberate slacking in the war industries may be discounted. Factory workmen are as patriotic as other groups, and fifth column activities can probably be handled as they arise.

The intensification of such war production and the building of so many new factories to handle it naturally arouse some fears about the future. Workmen as well as employers wonder what will be done with all those factories, and the people in them, when the war ends. But such worries are met with the practical suggestion that the only thing to do is to strain every effort to win the war, because "if we don't win it without needless delay, nothing else will matter much."

THE SHOW-DOWN

The Russo-German brawl is now simplified. It's Joe against Adolf, and we American cans are betting on Joe. Not that we're exactly fond of him and his ideas, but he packs a wallop and takes it on the chin without blinking and keeps everlastingly after his man. And Adolf is getting shaky in the knees.

So the Hammer and Sickle rise above the Swastika, and Father Time with his scythe newly whetted starts to do some reaping.

Hitler begins to see dimly that it's a large world, after all, and hard to conquer. Nobody ever really succeeded with that job. Even now, with all the improvements in mechanized devilities, world conquest is not possible except to a large group of nations working in unison. Such procedure is now operating, with our Uncle Sam playing an increasingly prominent part.

BAD LUCK TO HIM!

Adolf Hitler, ranking Nazi Superman, with his war bogging down in Russian snowdrifts and the people at home getting worrier and worrier, now takes hold in earnest. Back from Berchtesgaden with his new revelation, he has kicked out the Field Marshal who won all the Nazi victories so far. He himself will be his own Alexander and Caesar, his own prophet and performer of military miracles.

To tell the truth, though, Herr Superman doesn't seem to be quite himself lately. There is a glitter in his eye and a wildness in his speech, observers say, that bodes ill for his undertakings. We sincerely wish him the worst of luck.

Cheers for those United Auto Workers who are buying enough defense bonds to replace the battleship Arizona!

Wild geese had better keep far away from civilization, or they'll be trained to carry bombs.

The American people are normally sluggish, but get us warmed up and there isn't anything we can't do.

Nobody seems to know how Churchill traveled to Washington from England. Maybe he borrowed Santa's sleigh and reindeer.

Anything can be endured as long as there is no blackout of news.

The word "American" now means anybody from the Canadian border to the South Pole.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

MENTAL DISEASES

Three of every seven men discharged from the United States Army in 1939 were suffering from mental disease.

This does not mean that all of these mental cases cannot fit into civil life in some way, but it does mean that they do not fit in with the discipline, the food, the work of the army.

Why do so many mental cases get into the army? Why are they not rejected by the medical examiner?

In the first place, as these men are fit physically as far as heart, blood pressure, lungs and other organs are concerned, and as they are at least as intelligent as other recruits, it is difficult for the examiner to discover that they have some queer ideas about life, may have had parents or grandparents who were nervous or strange in their behavior. Unless this is known to the examiner, he may never suspect any underlying nervous or mental disability.

Further, even if the medical examiner thinks that there is a slight nervous or mental element present, the recruit himself or the officers of his unit may feel that "army" life might really be helpful both physically and mentally.

There is no question but that the regular exercise, good food, and plenty of rest helps the majority of these young men. Thus Dr. J. A. Alta, Mayo Clinic, says, "For the most part, men drawn from every walk of life into the discipline and work of military life, have made an outstanding adjustment to army life much to the credit of the army and themselves. However, many others will do poorly and hysterical reactions and psychoses (fear that an ailment is present) occur."

What can be done about these cases? Naturally, the examining officer has not time to spend an hour questioning the recruit to determine whether his thoughts and actions are absolutely normal because so many even in civil life are "borderline" cases mentally.

However, remembering that mental cases from the last war have cost the United States one billion dollars to date, examining physicians will give more attention this time to the possibility of the presence of mental defects. Questions directed toward the family history and the personal history as to "behavior" may save many borderline cases from becoming a liability to the country.

Churchill's Speech Might Go Down in History as One of World's Greatest

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Dec. 27.—Maybe it will be said some day that Prime Minister Churchill gave America her stride in the second world war. For he has brought with him a tonic of reassurance and confidence that makes long range planning for victory seem comprehensible in spite of the setbacks and defeats of the immediate future.

The speech of the British Prime Minister to the United States Congress will live long in the memory of those who heard it. Nothing compares with it—not even the great speech which President Wilson made in London shortly after the Armistice of 1918. For here was an address made in a moment of depression, with victory far off and disappointments on every side. Here is a message from the leader of one free people to another—delivered as is Libya as an example of what the free air of a legislative assembly that is master of its own destiny.

The event is historic not merely, however, because it foreshadows a new collaboration for war but a comradeship in peace. The mistakes of the last post-war period brought the second world war. Prime Minister Churchill struck out boldly for an understanding that will keep the English-speaking peoples together in peace as in war.

The old, old objections to the surrender of sovereignty are not heard now as the armed forces of Britain and America prepare to accept each other's orders and commands. The objective is victory and the British and American governments are working so closely together that no treaty or agreement or pact ever bound two nations more tightly than the informal understandings which have already been reached.

President Roosevelt has the confidence and friendship of the British Prime Minister and the latter feels the same about the American leader. This is not their first opportunity for major decisions. Their conference last summer was preliminary to what the inevitable trend—America's participation in the war.

The Prime Minister's speech to Congress was a job that could not have been done as well or as authoritatively by an American spokesman. For he knows at first hand the entire strategy. Why have not the Philippines or Malaya been better defended? Why was the Pacific left relatively unprotected? With the candor that has made Mr. Churchill famous he has disarmed critics at once by admitting that lend-lease made possible a victory in Libya and assured the safe transportation of planes and supplies thus saving the British Isles as an all important base of operations. To have dispersed American supplies might have cost Britain the war.

Washington — The capital in wartime:

The first days of the war saw record after record fall in the District of Columbia marriage license bureau. One day, 119 licenses were taken out, 31 more than ever before recorded. The one that attracted most attention was that of Baron Ulrich Frieherr von Gienanth to wed Austrian Baroness Karin von Veitlinghof-Riesch, a second secretary at the German embassy, the baron goes home to resume his command in Hitler's elite guard.

Maryland has started it around here and the District and other states, it is predicted, won't be far behind—using those 1941 automobile plates from now on until there are no longer any need to conserve metal. Instead of new plates, Maryland will issue little lock-over strips saying: 1942.

The war has caused all sorts of little panics. The District civilian defense director, Col. Lemuel Bolles, had to jump into the middle of two the other day. Capitalites had started runs on black cloth for use in blackouts, and adhesive tape to prevent breakage of shop windows to prevent breakage of shop windows. The director made appeals to stop buying, saying both products were needed badly "for defense." That must have been what Washingtonians thought, too. At last report, the runs still were going strong.

Listening attentively to an air raid warden outlining instructions at a meeting in a schoolhouse on Kalorama Road, the other night were Chief Justice of the United States and Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone.

At the same air raid sessions was Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, who presided in the White House in another war when death from the sky on cities far behind the lines was only something the Zeppelin boys dreamed up to scare the folks at home.

Comment at the National Press club: "Well, times do change. I've only been here a few years but I can remember when some of the most sought-after invitations around here were to those bierbreads at Kurt Sell's (German newspaperman) where every one sat around and drank beer and kumme and sang 'Schmitzbank' and to Kato's (Japanese correspondent) where you got real suki yaki."

Local police, Better Business bureau and defense officials are scamping all over town trying to catch the racketeers who are picking up dollars in a phoney drive for "District Defense Council funds." It's the old telephone racket. A smooth voice calls, makes a great high-pressure plea, gets a promise and

To maintain a stable population of 150,000,000 in the United States, 2,396,000 babies would have to be born every year. This is slightly above the 2,360,399 births reported to the Census for 1940.

On entering the grounds of the Benedictine Hospital, one is impressed with the gay homelike Christmas spirit expressed in the twinkling lights that glow in the Christmas lighting effect of blue, red and green, and the holly wreaths of holly with red ribbon trim suspended from the wide doorway. The large reception room with its inviting and glowing fireplace is decorated in silver and blue, together with wide roping of Christmas greenery festooned over arches and fireplaces. Large halls also have Christmas trees glistening with colored lights, icicles, snow, and other gay decorations. Each room in the hospital has a natural green wreath, with holly berry trim, and the wards have not only wreaths but pretty Christmas trees gayly lighted. The children's rooms and ward is especially attractive in its pretty Christmas colors and gayly lighted tree.

HOW MUCH DOES KNITTING
DISTRACT ATTENTION?

Knowing of the urgent plea made for knitted garments by the Red Cross and other organizations, I do not want to give the impression that knitting is not entirely proper at all times and places. And yet, because of many readers who ask me why I never say a word in protest against knitting marathons carried beyond the limits of good reason, I do think it is perhaps necessary to give some idea of what might be considered reasonable.

It would surely be reasonable to expect knitters to follow the rules that are observed by courteous smokers in the house of non-smokers, which is to ask "Do you mind if I knit?" If one is merely sitting in a general group, one person's knitting hardly could be annoying to anyone. But when one is supposed to be able to talk and listen and knit! Every now and then I get protests from lecturers who greatly mind the disturbing motions made by the countless needles of a knitting industry. But since the one very best opportunity to knit or to crochet is while listening to a lecturer or to music or to someone reading, a nervous lecturer, it seems to me, must make his own request for "quiet hands." He does this moreover, at the risk of exchanging an appreciable number of busy hands for vacant seats.

Disposing of Wraps at House
Dear Mrs. Post: What is done with coats when one is going to a wedding at a house instead of at a church?
Answer: There is always a dressing-room for the ladies. Usually there is also one for the gentlemen. And unless you are intending to keep your coat on throughout your stay at the reception, you are expected to leave it in the dressing-room.

"Many Happy Returns"
Dear Mrs. Post: Will you please tell us on what occasion it is suitable to offer "Many Happy Returns."
Answer: Birthday and wedding anniversaries are the only two I can think of. An example of unsuitable occasion was that told me once by a new mother whose first visitor upon giving her a present for the baby, wished her many happy returns of the day!
Mrs. Post is sorry she can no longer answer personal letters. She is glad however to have many printed slips on a variety of subjects to offer to her readers. Today's slip is "INTRODUCTIONS." Be sure to send a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Mrs. Post, in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 150, Times Square Station, New York, N. Y. Leaflets cannot be mailed unless self-addressed envelope bears correct amount of postage.

ONLY THEY

No matter who starts something new, he's always sure to find that pessimists will hunt him up and try to change his mind.

They'll say it can't be done, because it wasn't done before. They'll scoff and laugh and show him with ridicule galore.

They'll back up some remarks with proof in their attempts to hamper his worthy deeds; and on his hopes they'll strive to put a damper.

So only those who can work on through jeers of those who'd swerve 'em. Attain life's goals of great reward; and only they deserve 'em.

The best sense of humor is that which tells you what is not safe to laugh at.

If you wonder what will happen to Hitler, look back into history. Caesar, Alexander, Napoleon, Kaiser Wilhelm—they did all right for awhile, but where did they get?

Insurance Adjuster—What? You say you sounded your horn at the railroad crossing and the engineer didn't heed your warning?

It is almost as hard to live with an income as it is to live without one.

Doctor—I can't quite diagnose your case. I think it must be drink.

Patient—All right, Doc. I'll come back when you're sober.

Doctor (as he examined patient's shins)—Do you play hockey?

Patient—No, bridge.

Condemnation generally calls neither for intelligence nor for courage, and it is seldom constructive.

Wilbur—Rhodes is as stubborn as a mule, isn't he?

George—Yes, he always puts his best foot backward.

Every automobile seller claims the biggest feature of his particular car, but the biggest feature in any car is its depreciation, which no seller seems to mention.

Two women were discussing the difference between courtship and marriage: "John used to drive out in the country and we'd park and he'd whisper sweet nothings in my ear. But since marriage we drive out in the country and park and John tunes in his favorite news commentator. There is less static in the country and he gets better reception. He even forgets I'm in the car!"

Drive your car at a speed not exceeding forty miles an hour, thus saving gasoline and also contributing to safer driving.

Correct this sentence: "That country is our best customer," said the statesman. "But we'll quit doing business with it until it reforms."

(By The Associated Press)

New York—Louis Lopez, 9, was chinning himself happily on a red metal box of convenient height when firemen raced to the scene. Patient interpreters explained to Louis, who arrived two weeks ago from Puerto Rico, just how a fire alarm box works.

Nashville, Tenn.—An army officer walked into the office of a subordinate at 4 p. m., quitting time. Next morning the subordinate found this memo addressed to him:

"I came into your office at 4 o'clock yesterday and felt your chair, it wasn't even warm."

Pittsburgh—The U. S. Marines have rejected "with regret" the enlistment application of Karl Saunik, who wrote he was a "very strong young man, anxious to fight for Uncle Sam."

Maj. A. E. Simon, recruiting officer, thanking Karl for his "glorious spirit of patriotism," pointed out a serious disqualification:

Karl is 8 years old.

Spokane, Wash.—Lloyd G. Christman says he's thinking of changing the last letter of his name to "S."

There are two good reasons. Daughter Joan was born on Christmas Day 13 years ago. The Christmas Christmas gift this year was a boy—Dennis Oliver.

Taylorville, Ill.—The Taylorville High School basketball team scored a double scalp in its last victory—trimming their opponents in an overtime game and literally cutting the hair off their coach's head.

Coach Dolph Stanley promised the 10 members of the squad—all of whom sport crew style haircuts—that if they won 10 consecutive games he would get his locks clipped extremely short.

The team won the 10 straight, so now the coach says he'll go through with his part of the bargain.

Chapter 33

Miss Olive's "Crush"

"THERE'S writing on the back of the picture," Mrs. Thorne said. "See, it says, 'Henry with Lucky and Juanita.' It is peculiar, now you speak of it. I thought he looked like a minister, but I never connected him with that exhibition. He must have been a most unusual man, that Ferdinand."

"That who?" Asey stared at her.

"Ferdinand."

"Who in time was he?"

"He was the photographer in—well, it would be Quisset now, but in those days it was Pochet. Just think, it never occurred to me when Ann showed me this, but it is one of Ferdinand's pictures? Those jardinières of grass, and that spiked iron railing are in every family picture for miles around. Ferdinand must have taken pictures of half the Cape."

And what amazes me," Mrs. Thorne added, "isn't just the way his pictures kept—they never faded out white, like some—but the way people kept his pictures. I suppose that's why, though. They kept, and so people kept them."

"Looky here," Asey said, "Ann Joyce wasn't a Cape Codder, was she? Was her folks Cape Codder?"

"Her folks are dead," Mrs. Thorne said. "She's an orphan. I don't think she has any family at all, except this cousin on her mother's side who died. And I'm sure she told me she was born in New York state. She lives in New York now. Of course, Cape Codders spread out, but people always know if they do come from the Cape—are you going to take that picture with you?"

"Uh-huh. I wonder," Asey said, "where are those pictures now that Mr. Philpotts had in his exhibition?"

"Why, he just borrowed them from people!" Mrs. Thorne said. "I suppose he gave them back afterwards—is this important, this picture? Is it a clew?"

"I don't know," Asey told her honestly. "If it's a clew, or just a sort of puzzle. If this fellow with the whiskers really was a minister, then most likely this picture don't mean much. You know, whenever ministers left a church, they used to give everybody a picture of themselves—we got a raft of ministers at home in albums. On the other hand, it's sort of an odd coincidence to have this picture turnin' up here now, considerin'! Huh. Did the girl mention any new play she wanted to be in?"

"No, she didn't say much about her work. But she seemed kind of excited these last couple of days," Mrs. Thorne said. "I told those troopers so. And I told them that she hadn't any fights or quarrels with anyone, nor any enemy in the world. She was a nice girl! As nice a girl—"

"Uh-huh. I'm glad," Asey said hurriedly before Mrs. Thorne had a chance to launch into any recital of Ann's sterling virtues. "She told me as much just a little while ago. I'm goin' along now, but if you remember anything about this picture, like who Old Whiskers is, I wish you'd contrive to let me know."

"Angie Harris's mother could probably tell you. She's ninety-five," Mrs. Thorne said, "and remembers everything. Particularly about ministers. She told Mr. Philpotts lots of things."

"Thanks," Asey said. "I think I'll look into her tomorrow."

Mrs. Clutterfield thinks

HE returned to the roadster, where Mrs. Clutterfield greeted him with an arch salute.

"Where to, sir?" she asked brightly.

Asey frowned. "I'm torn," he said. "I got this yen to tear a ninety-five-year-old woman out of her bed at—what time is it, quarter to two? An' at the same time I want to see this Bram Reid, an' I want to see Horace Mayo. I guess I better see him first. Back to the Inn, please. Tell me, you happen to know Horace's last name?"

"His last name?" Like everyone else, Mrs. Clutterfield seemed dumfounded at the suggestion that Horace might possess a last name. "Why, Hingham, of course! Oh, no, it couldn't be Hingham, could it? Isn't that strange, I can't remember!"

"Neither can anyone else," Asey said. "What's Horace like, that people remember only half of him?"

"Why, you saw him," Mrs. Clutterfield said. "He must have passed by you when you went into the Theater to see Mrs. Hingham. He had on shorts and a blazer."

"What? Shorts an' a blazer? That fellow! If I was drivin'!" Asey said, "we'd be strugglin' in a ditch this instant! You mean, that blonde youth? Him! He couldn't have been more than twenty!"

"He was twenty-six last month. He's a nice boy, but always so tired looking, and always wanting a quarter from someone to buy cigarettes with. He often borrows money from Alfred—really, I've often thought that if Mrs. Hingham was as fond of Horace as she seems, she should really make him a small allowance. Just so he would have a little pocket money, Mr. Mayo."

"Uh-huh," Asey said. "Good drivers watch the road."

"Mr. Mayo," Mrs. Clutterfield spoke to the windshield wiper, "of course I can't ever solve those little daily mystery cartoons but, d'you know, a little bird has just told me where Miss Olive went!"

"Where?"

"You know," Mrs. Clutterfield said coyly, "I think Miss Olive has a crush on Bram Reid! I do. I mean it! She doesn't often talk to people, but last week she an I were both sitting out on the lawn just after Bram had left with Horace, and I said wasn't he still marvelous looking. And d'you know what? She unben't! Actually—"

"The road," Asey said. "Don't get so worked up that you forget the road, now!"

"I'm sorry! But she confessed she'd seen everyone of Bram Reid's pictures, and some of them four or five times! I gathered she was dying to meet him and talk with him, but she was too shy just to walk up and speak to him. She's awfully shy, really. And when Freddy said tonight—she was talking to that police lieutenant and giving him a description of what Miss Olive was wearing this afternoon—when she said Miss Olive wore a gray hat with a feather, I almost spoke up then."

"In short where do you think Miss Olive went tonight?"

The Trail

"To the White Horse Grill. You see, while we were talking about Bram Reid, she and I suggested that if she ever wanted to see him, she had only to go to the White Horse Grill. Horace told me Bram Reid always has dinner there. Now, Mr. Mayo, I can't even do those little mystery cartoons, but I've been wondering if maybe it couldn't be something as simple as that? She just went to see Bram Reid!"

"You suggestin' she eloped with him after dinner?" Asey inquired dryly.

"No, indeed! Only, because she was wearing that new hat. I decided she must be going somewhere special. You don't," Mrs. Clutterfield pointed out, "wear a new hat if it looks as stormy out as it began to when she left!"

"I don't know," Asey said slowly, "why your guess as to what Miss Olive done ain't as good as mine, or anybody else's. Whereabouts in Skicket is this White Horse place? I don't seem to remember anythin' of that name."

"It used to be the Casa Valencia," Mrs. Clutterfield said, "until about a month ago. Then it got all done over and became the White Horse Grill."

"Whoa!" Asey said. "That's on the road to Provincetown! I wonder, now! I wonder if—golly, I'm torn! I ought to get back to the Inn, but if Jennie an' I see the real Miss Olive, that's the way she was headin' from the four corners. I wonder if the place's open all night, like the Valencia used to be?"

"I think so. Shall we go there?" Mrs. Clutterfield said, "to try the new highway! We just simply ought to float!"

"She floated at such a pace that Asey cautioned her gently."

"The cops don't often stop this car, but—uh—it's still foggy. Ease her off a bit."

"To think," Mrs. Clutterfield said, "that Alfred always considered forty-five going fast! Mr. Mayo, they're still open at the White Horse. See the daily mystery cartoon. Was she there?"

"Uh-huh, she was," Mrs. Clutterfield said. "I wish you'd explain something to me. Why is it that each additional thing I find out, that ought by rights to make things up, all the more?"

"Exactly!" Mrs. Clutterfield nodded her head enthusiastically. "That's exactly the way I feel about the daily mystery cartoon! She went to see Bram Reid, didn't she?"

"Uh-huh. Horace was waitin' for her. They talked together a minute an' then sat down. Horace got up an' made a phone call. While he was phoinin', Bram Reid come. The three of 'em had dinner together, an'—"

Various Anthems Will Be Played At Waltz Ball

"Of course I can get them," was the reply of Vladimir Padwa, when asked if he could obtain the music of the national anthems of the numerous South American republics which during the past fortnight have become allies of the U.S.A. "I shall try to bring many of them with me when I come from New York this evening to take charge of the music at the 'Waltz Ball' at the Woodstock Town Hall. We will play as many as we can of the 33 national anthems," he said.

With three alternating orchestras, of the "jazz," square dance and waltz varieties, the evening's musical program will be full. It is whispered that the veiled partner of Norbert Heerman's exhibition dance will be a famous and beautiful movie star. Added to the poster collection now on view in various store windows of the village, is a fascinating new one by Andree Ruellan. These will be auctioned on the dance floor that night.

Everyone has been so eager to volunteer help that practically the entire gross receipts will be turned over to the Red Cross emergency fund. All are asked to come prepared to partake generously of the refreshments which will be on sale, and to bid up the posters signed by names famous in the art world, and in themselves commanding a high price, and to let the modest 50 cents entrance fee be just a starter of the evening's generosity to the Red Cross.

U. S. and Britain Reach Agreement On War Strategy

that Britain could repel any invasion attempt. In his address the Prime Minister saw reason to hope that "the end of 1942 will see us quite definitely in a better position than we are now," and that "the year 1943 will enable us to assume the initiative upon an ample scale."

Churchill was said to have told the intimate luncheon group that the Royal Air Force has attained daytime superiority over Great Britain proper and was still expanding its strength. One informant said the Prime Minister believed it quite likely Germany would make a major invasion attempt in the spring.

But he was said to have explained that British information about enemy troop concentrations has improved greatly. It would be impossible, he was quoted as saying, for the Nazis to send any large force across the English Channel without undergoing terrific punishment from the RAF before the expedition ever got started.

Pieced together, reports from the legislators who ate turkey luncheon with Churchill yesterday gave this picture:

Churchill's information was that the German retreat in Russia had been orderly in general, although the Nazis may have been routed at a few points.

In Libya, the Prime Minister was convinced that British soldiers had proved themselves more than equal to the Germans man-to-man when they had comparable equipment.

The Prime Minister expressed hope that Singapore could be held against the Japanese.

He told his listeners that the chief weakness of the German people was the lack of a sense of humor and an inability to grasp the problems of humanity.

Lunch Litter Matter Discussed at Meeting

Friday evening at the meeting of the Board of Health a communication was read from Superintendent Arthur J. Laidlaw of the city's schools, in which he stated that the complaint lodged with the health department regarding pupils in the M. J. M. School and the Kingston High School littering lawns in the vicinity of the schools with the remnants from their lunches had been taken up by the education board.

"For your information," wrote Superintendent Laidlaw, "the matter has been brought to the attention of the students and they have been urged to discontinue the practice. The school authorities will do all they can in stopping the practice."

The communication was filed. The reports of the officers showed that during November there had been 62 births and 47 deaths reported in the city. Dr. L. E. Sanford, health officer, reported 23 cases of chicken pox during November; 13 of whooping cough; five of pneumonia; 7 of bacillary dysentery; two of measles; three of scarlet fever; one of para-typhoid, and one of Vincent's angina.

Churchill's Advice to United States Comes From Allies' Own Experience

years ago many of the English were complacent although they had far less reason to feel that way than we; the war was not very far away from them, although in those days of the tragically mis-named "Bore War" it seemed so to many in England. The blow that awakened England to what Mr. Churchill called "our supreme hour" was Dunkerque; but this was almost a year after the war started, whereas our pre-belligerent complacency was jarred at the start of war by Pearl Harbor.

In case any of us had any doubt about it, the Japanese gave us additional proof today that Mr. Churchill was right to say: "They—our enemies—will stop at nothing." The little men in planes which flaunt the crimson symbol of the rising sun dumped ton upon ton of explosive into the open and undefended city of Manila, where they knew by constant observation yesterday that there was not the slightest chance of opposition.

Possibly to Americans, Mr. Churchill's caution against impatience is even more to the point. In speaking of a long and a hard war he says, however, that "our peoples would rather know the truth, savor though it be." Then he tells us we must wait until 1943 or 1944 to strike the telling blow, because we are yet so short of total mobilization. To strike even then, he goes on, every effort must be made, nothing must be kept back, we must bend to the task "the whole man power, brain power, virility, valor and civic virtue of the English-speaking world."

Mr. Churchill well knows the un-wisdom of impatience; he learned it, with the rest of his people, in Norway, in Flanders, in Greece, in Africa. These were the bitter pills of "too little and too late." And we Americans have demonstrated, quite frequently since Munich, that we are far more impatient than the English.

As for the British Prime Minister's third warning, against the pitfalls of defeatism, that is something for the future; for there is no outward evidence in America today of such a trend. It may however, creep below the surface as it undeniably crept in England before the English people themselves took new heart and stamped it out.

Mr. Churchill is utterly sure that we will win, "now that we are together," and he feels that on this "new scene . . . a steady light will glow and brighten." He is able, also, to bring concrete proof from the African desert that free armies, given at last the proper weapons, can "beat the life out of the savage Nazi."

This, he goes on, is only a fore-taste of what we have got to

Centipedes
Among the enemies of "trap-door spiders" are centipedes. Quite often they get down into the underground homes and destroy both adults and young.

A centipede is a small, wormlike animal with many legs. Its name means "hundred feet." Different centipedes have different numbers of legs. Young brown centipedes have only a dozen legs after they hatch from eggs, but in later life the body grows in length and there is an increase in the number of legs. A full-grown centipede may have from 200 to 300 legs!

Youth Is Arrested On 'Gun' Charge

Poughkeepsie Young Man to Be Given Hearing on Assault Count

Charged with having fired a bullet from a .22 calibre rifle into the left ankle of George Busick, 44, of Highland, Friday evening, Charles E. Brown, 19, of 24 Conklin street, Poughkeepsie, was arrested by Troopers Metzger and Baker of the B. C. I., who investigated the affair. He was arraigned before Justice Walter Seaman of Highland on a charge of assault, second degree and furnished bail of $500 for a hearing January 5.

The shooting took place on the property of Jacob Busick on the Chodokee Road, near Highland, a cousin of George Busick. Trooper Metzger said that there had been an argument about 6 o'clock that evening between Charles Busick and Elmer Barkley, George Busick and Charles Brown being present at the time. Later the party went to the stables and according to the story told the officers there was an argument between George Busick and Elmer Barkley, when Brown, who had been hunting that afternoon, and who had brought his rifle with him to the stables, shot at Barkley. He said that the latter had called him names and started toward him.

For many years Mr. Munch had been a member of the Spring Street Lutheran Church.

Since early youth he had been deeply interested in local freemasonry matters and for years had been an active member of Cornell Hose Company.

He was also a past president of the Pioneer Veterans of F-51, and a member of the 51st Pioneer Regimental Association; Kingston Post of the American Legion; No. 40 & 8, and Joyce-Schirrick Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

New Towns Rise In Rural Britain

Model Centers Will House Hundreds of Thousands Of War Workers.

LONDON.—Details of the steps taken in Great Britain to meet the housing emergency brought about by Nazi air raids and nationwide armament production show that the construction is on a vast scale.

Six permanent model towns, built to plans designed by architects, have already risen on what were green fields and another 94 are nearing completion.

The ministry of supply, faced with the necessity of finding living accommodation for hundreds of thousands of war-factory workers in rural areas where there were only small villages with tiny cottages, made plans to create these new centers.

Unlike the sordid shanty towns of the last war, these, says a description of them in the London Sunday Express, will stand and expand after this war, so that men and women in industry can continue to live in beautiful rural surroundings while within walking distance of their work.

House 100 Workers. Each town has blocks of homes built to house 100 workers. The blocks are laid out in one-story U formation around a central green, where communal buildings stand as the center of social life. There are hospitals, chapels, hair-dressing shops, cafes and theaters.

Some of the townships are for single men and women, who have traveled from all corners of the kingdom to work in the factories tucked away from the sinister attacks of the enemy. Others have large blocks of two-story houses built for married couples.

To make home life easier, the towns are being run on hostel lines. This is purely a war-time measure, and when peace comes and workers settle down to normal ways of life the hostel arrangements may be ended if the workers wish.

Each block has six bathrooms—the baths are shining pale green porcelain. There is a laundry with fitted sinks, ironing boards and electric irons. Drying rooms for airing clothes and a special room for drying wet clothes are included.

Two large dining rooms seating 500 at a time serve three meals a day.

Has Social Center.

In the big social center around which the houses are built are the rest rooms, reading and writing room, and the theater and dance hall. There are dances twice a week and a dramatic performance once a week.

The center has a shop, postoffice and telephone, and soon there will be a cafe open all day.

Central heating pipes running through all the buildings keep the homes at an even, warm temperature in winter.

Today the inhabitants of the new townships pay an all-in rate for living there. Girl workers pay 25s a week for full board and lodgings. Furniture and all equipment are supplied. Men pay 30s a week. A special rate is being worked out for married couples.

There are no chimneys, no ash cans, rubbish being burned in incinerators.

Aside from these rural model towns, one-story flat-roof homes that after the war can be built up to regular size houses of two floors or more are being erected in bomb-ruined sections of cities.

Band Gadget Invented To Snuff Out Cigarettes

CLEVELAND, Anthony J. Millett, 31-year-old inventor, has devised a gadget he believes will prove a boon to absent-minded smokers—a cigarette "snuffer-outer."

The invention consists of a narrow band of fire-resistant material around the paper of the cigarette. The band is movable.

"It's said that with every cigarette equipped with a snuffer, it would be no reason to toss a lighted one out a car window."

MEMO TO ADVERTISERS

HOW TO MEASURE Advertising Values

WE ASK advertisers to think of the circulation of this newspaper in terms of the distribution of their advertising—the size, quality and interest of the audience to which their advertising is addressed. From that viewpoint our circulation becomes a more direct factor in business plans.

There are well-known standards for circulation values just as there are definite measures of weight and quality as used in the purchase and sale of merchandise.

The standards for evaluating circulation have been established by the Audit Bureau of Circulations, a national cooperative association of 2000 advertisers, advertising agencies and publishers in the United States and Canada. This newspaper is an A.B.C. member.

The Bureau has a large staff of experienced auditors and each year one of these men visits our office and makes an audit of our circulation records. Based on the information thus secured, the Bureau issues official A.B.C. Audit Reports.

These reports tell how much circulation we have, where and how it is distributed, how much people paid (important because paid circulation proves reader interest) and many other facts that make it possible to invest in newspaper advertising on the basis of known values.

For complete and verified information about the distribution of your advertising when it appears in this newspaper ask us for A. B. C. reports.
